- terms in the labour agreement

Temporary skilled visa holders from Hong Kong are eligible for an extension of 5 years in addition to the time they've already been in Australia.

Include other family members

You can include other family members (called 'secondary applicants') in your visa application. The family members you can add will depend on whether you hold a subclass 457 or subclass 482 visa.

You have not held a subclass 457 or subclass 482 visa

If you have not held a subclass 457 or 482 visa, the secondary applicants you can include in your visa application are those who are members of the family unit.

You hold a subclass 457 or 482 visa

If you hold a subclass 457 or 482 visa and you are applying for a subsequent subclass 482 visa, the secondary applicants you can include in your application are:

- one of the members of the family unit, or
- a person who holds a subclass 457 or 482 visa that we granted on the basis that they were a member of the family unit at the time, and is one of the following:
    - your spouse or de facto partner
    - your or your spouse's or de facto partner's child or step-child who is not engaged, married or in a de facto relationship, and is:
        - younger than 23
        - aged 23 or older and fully or mostly reliant on you or your partner because they cannot work, due to a partial or total physical or mental disability
        - a dependent child of your or your spouse or de facto partner's child or step-child.

For us to grant the visa, the:

- main applicant's nomination must include the secondary applicants, or
- secondary applicant must provide written evidence that the main applicant's sponsor agrees that the secondary applicant can be a secondary sponsored person.

Secondary applicants who apply for the visa must meet our health (/help-support/meeting-our-requirements/health) and character (/help-support/meeting-our-requirements/character) requirements.

You can't add family members to your visa application after you have submitted it.

If the department is processing your application, family members that you did not include can lodge a subsequent entrant (/visas/getting-a-visa/visa-listing/skills-in-demand-visa-subclass-482/subsequent-entrant) application.

Alternatively, if we have granted you a visa, family members may apply to join you in Australia later as a subsequent entrant (/visas/getting-a-visa/visa-listing/skills-in-demand-visa-subclass-482/subsequent-entrant).
