Ask a question

Existing provisions which enable a secondary holder of a Temporary Graduate visa to apply as a primary applicant remain.

Have studied with an Australian education provider in a designated regional area

You must have obtained your qualification that led to the grant of your first Temporary Graduate visa in the Post-Higher Education Work or Post-Study Work stream from an Australian education provider who is registered on CRICOS (http://cricos.education.gov.au/) and offers degree-level programs. The campus that you studied at must have been based in a designated regional area (/visas/working-in-australia/regional-migration/eligible-regional-areas).

Lived in a designated regional area

As the holder of a Temporary Graduate visa in the Post-Higher Education Work, Post-Study Work, or Replacement stream, you must have lived only in a designated regional area for at least 2 years immediately before applying for the Second Post-Higher Education Work stream visa. To do this, show us evidence that in the last 2 years, you resided in a designated regional area (/visas/working-in-australia/regional-migration/eligible-regional-areas).

Designated regional areas are divided into two categories: Category 2 “Cities and Major Regional Centres” and Category 3 “Regional Centres and Other Regional Areas".

If you have lived only in a Category 2 area, you can generally only be granted an additional 1 year visa. Exceptions apply to applicants living in a Category 2 area in Tasmania who can be granted a 2 year visa.

If you have lived only in a Category 3 area, you can only be granted an additional 2 year visa.

If you have moved between categories you will be considered for the shorter visa, unless you have lived in Category 2 and 3 areas in Tasmania.

If you have been away from your usual residence for a holiday or short work trip, it will not change the way we assess your usual residence.

The table below provides a guide on the residence and study requirements for the Second Post-Higher Education Work stream visa.
